

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to electronic medical records having polymorphisms data, an electronic library of these electronic medical records, and systems and methods
5 for managing genetic information. For example, the present invention provides system and methods for collecting, storing, and retrieving patient-specific genetic information from one or more electronic databases.